

July 11, 2018 San Francisco HR West Conference Evaluation Results Are In

The results are in! At the July 11, 2018 HR Star Conference held in South San Francisco, California for the third year in a row, I had the privilege of speaking to a large group of HR Professionals on the topic, “Creating and Building Effective Organizational Partnerships with HR”. Out of 16 Break out Sessions held I had the honor of being selected as one of the top three presenters. Over 70 HR Professionals requested excerpts of my presentation.

For those who didn’t have the opportunity to attend my session, as a coach, I focus on helping HR Professionals discover how to unlock their sphere of influence, through mutual respect, trust and inclusion. We reviewed avenues for enhancing individual development in establishing and managing partnerships with peers, counterparts and executives. This allows the ability to effectively influence and drive organizational change.

In today’s hectic work environment, more than ever, building and sustaining Partnerships across departmental lines is even more critical to individual and organizational success.

During the session I mentioned my book titled, “H.R.’s Partnership Challenge: Mastering The Art Of Not Being Everything To Everyone”. My presentation was a small sampling of what the book offers on helping HR Professionals enhance their career. Additionally, I share what worked for me in building and sustaining partnerships during my career. My book is available through Amazon and Kindle eBooks.

In addition, I am extremely proud to have received a personal indorsement from Dave Ulrich, adding value to the book’s core principal theme. He is considered a guru in human resources and has written numerous books covering critical topics in human resources leadership and partnerships.
